Mustard, Wheat, Jowar, Bajra

In Nangal Udaipurwati, mornings don't begin with machines...
they begin with fire, warmth, and conversation.

Food is slow. Life is real.
And purity is not a claim—it's a way of living.

This is where our oil begins.

Let Nature Nourish You

@organics.soul

A photograph of two men standing by a pond. The man on the left is wearing a white t-shirt and blue jeans, holding a black umbrella over the man on the right. The man on the right is wearing a blue zip-up jacket and dark trousers, looking towards the water. The background shows a stone wall and trees under a cloudy sky.

Water is wealth

2 bigha of stored rainwater.
No dependency. No shortcuts.
Just respect for nature.

Our crops grow with the water
we preserve—not chemicals we add.

A 60-bigha ancestral farm.
Built not just with land—
but with values.

This is Nangal Udaipurwati.

And this is where Soul Organics begins.

A photograph of a cow and a calf in a barn. The cow is white with a dark face and horns, standing in the center. The calf is smaller and also white, standing to the right. The barn has a corrugated metal roof and concrete walls. There are other cows visible in the background behind a metal railing. The lighting is warm and focused on the animals.

Strength comes from roots.

Our Tharparkar cows are not just livestock—
they are part of our ecosystem.

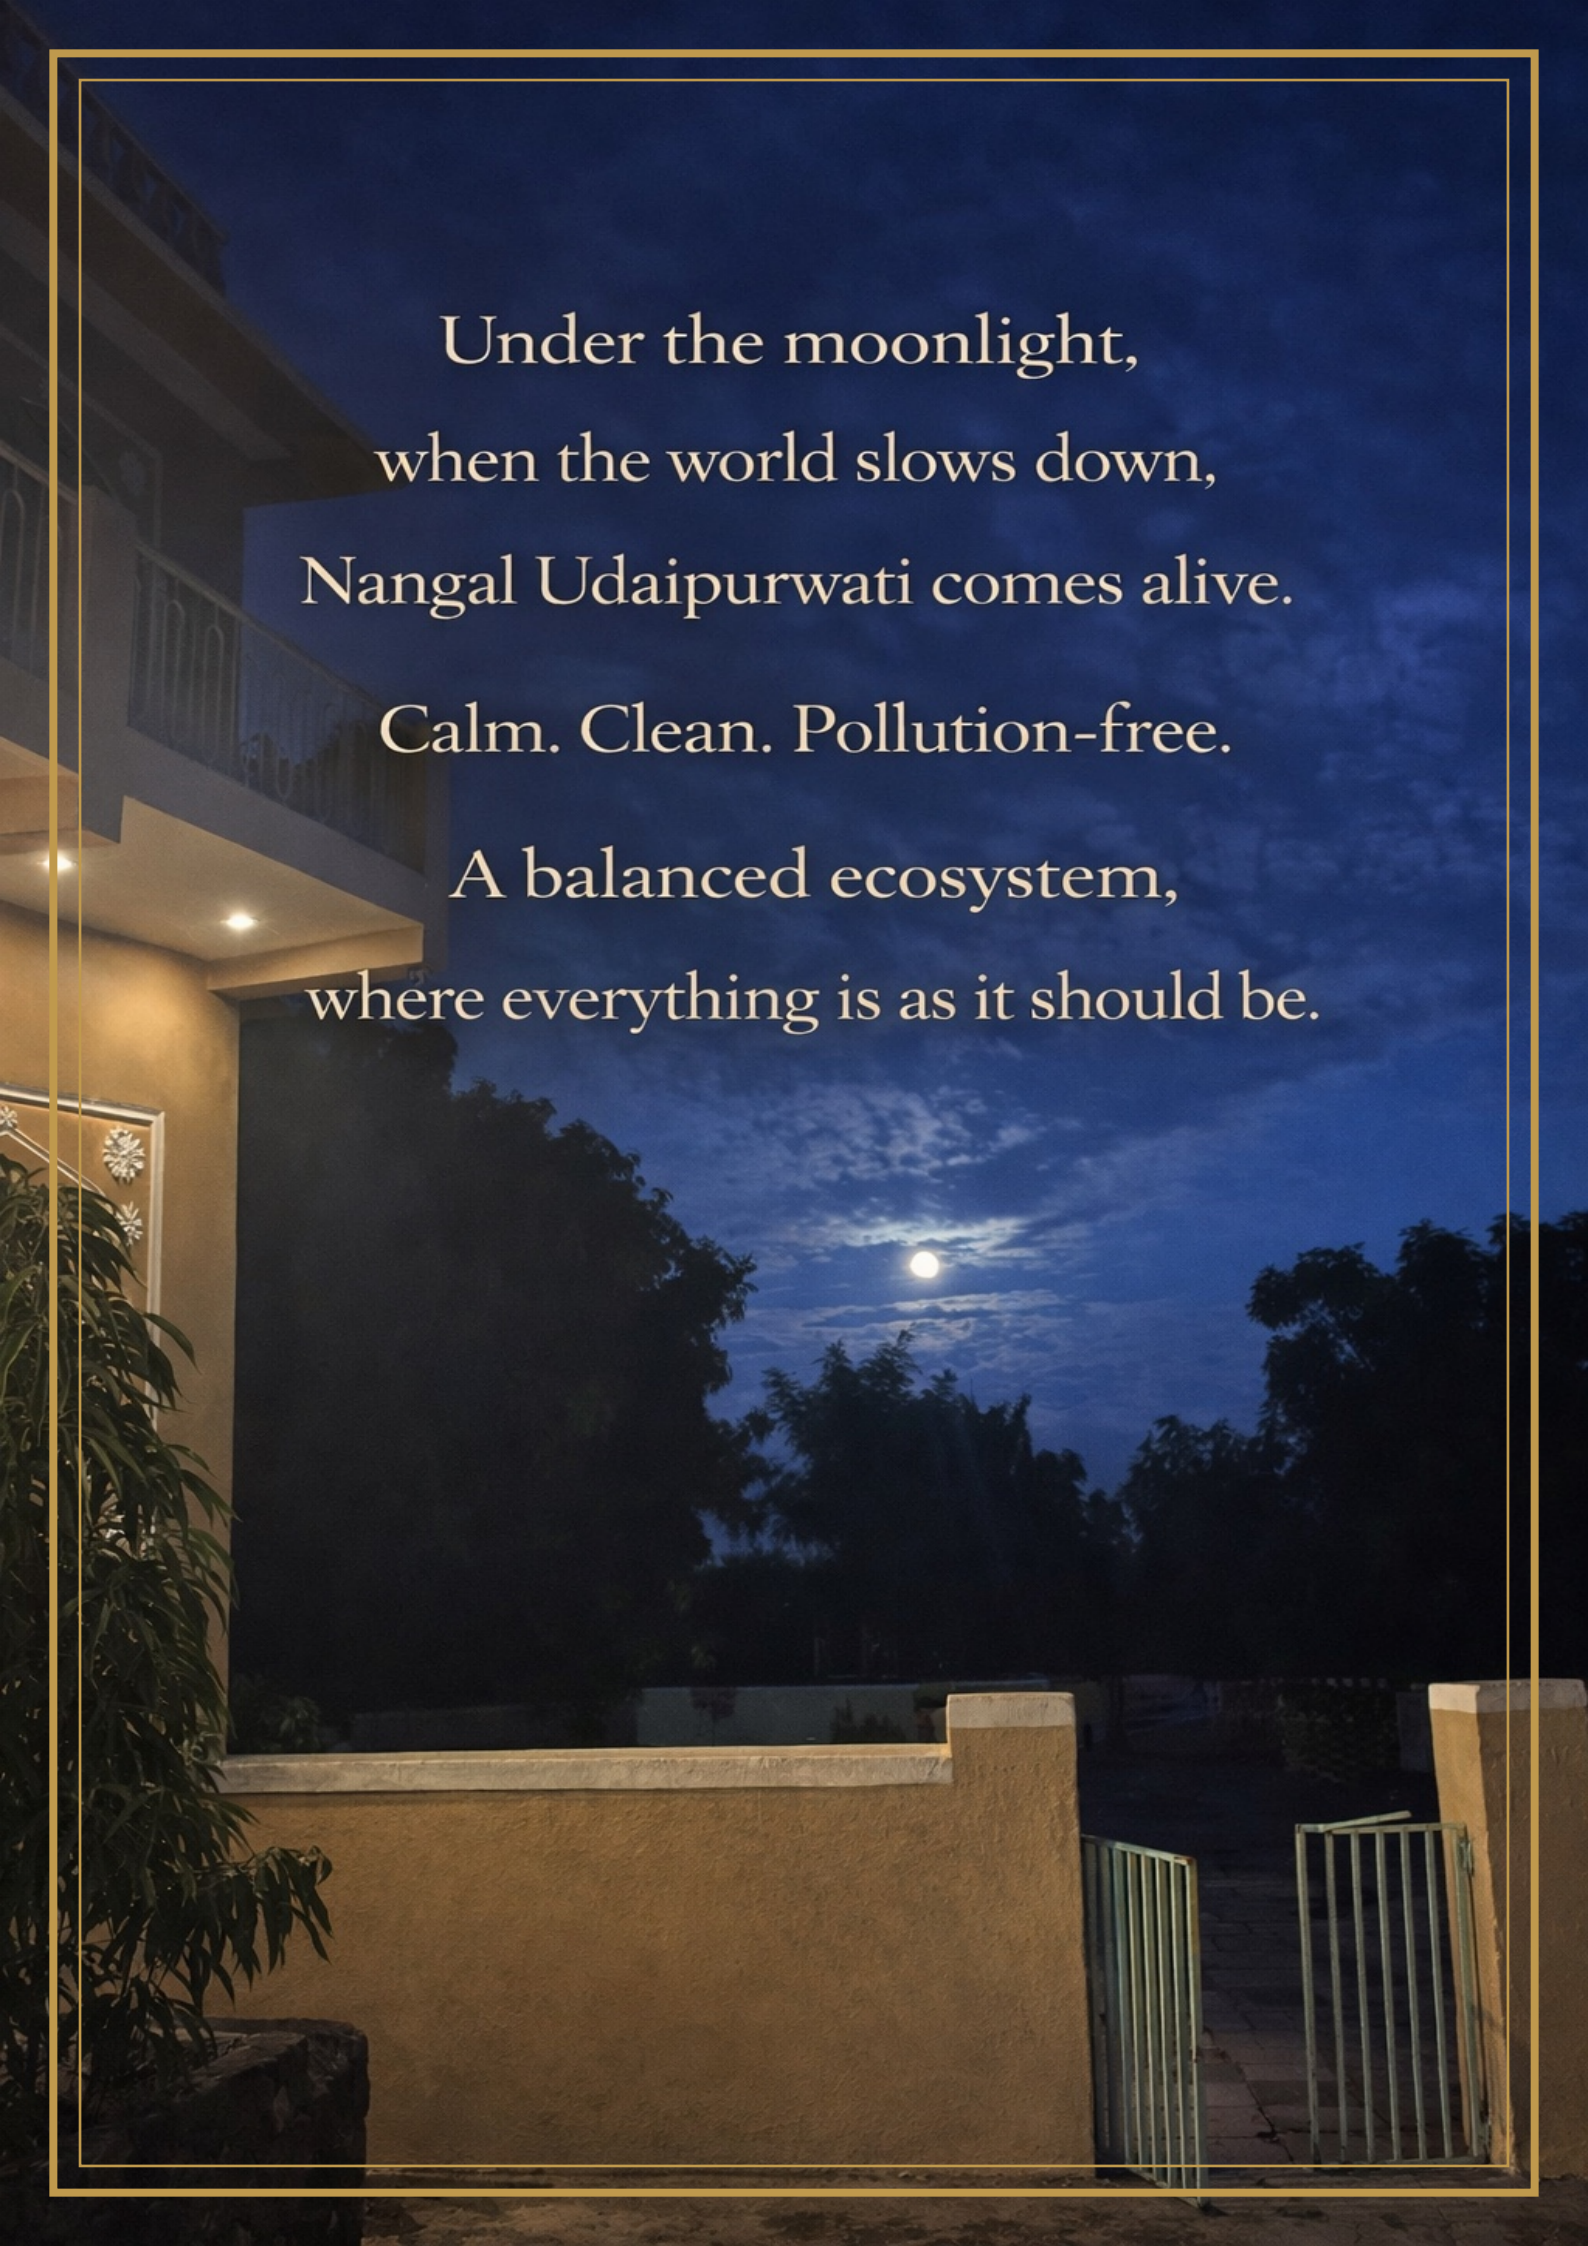

Pure breed. Natural care.

A symbol of everything we stand for.

Organic in everything we do.

Chemical-free in everything we grow.

Entirely self-sustained. Nurtured by nature.

A night scene of a building entrance. The sky is dark blue with a full moon and some light clouds. The building is lit up, and there is a gate in the foreground. The text is overlaid on the image.

Under the moonlight,
when the world slows down,
Nangal Udaipurwati comes alive.
Calm. Clean. Pollution-free.
A balanced ecosystem,
where everything is as it should be.
